Colour Choice

ALADY stopped her car for a red light. When the light turned green, she stayed right where she was. The light changed several times, and still she waited. Finally a traffic officer walked over to her car and politely inquired, “Madam, haven’t we any colours you like?”

The world is looking for some colours it likes. Some follow the rainbow—and find the colour of gold. Some are dazzled by the boldness and neons of night life. Some press on to great accomplishments, to fame, hoping to find satisfaction in the applause of the crowd. Some look for fulfillment in the depths of the inner self, and meditate the hours away. And some, with good reason, having tried all these, say, “None of the above.”

These have come back unsatisfied, they have tried the colours of the world and found them an empty sham. They are looking for colours worth living for, worth dying for.

But unfortunately some have made the better life seem gray and gloomy, they have lingered at the edges of the Christian way and been caught up in rituals and supposed restrictions. They mute their colours, blur their commitments, and try to stay in neutral shades of indecision. And those looking on say, “I’m miserable enough already, I don’t need something that dull.”

But true happiness, of course, is never discovered by Christians in camouflage. The Christian’s world is far from dreary. Our Lord offers a much brighter future.

Infact we worship a God who is lavish in His use of colour and design. Look at the sunsets—an original every evening. Look at the beautiful kea* in flight, its colours rich against the snow capped mountians. Look at the oak tree, its leaves quaking and shimmering, and scattering colour in a thousand places. Look at a butterfly, a rose, and a rainbow. Evidently our Creator loves colour and glisten, texture and design.

It is He who coats winter’s fields in spotless white. It is He who makes the daffodils burst into brightest yellow in the spring. It is He who paints the summer sky in photographer’s blue, and flowers in delicate pastels, and the sunsets in never-ending uniqueness. And then for a few exciting weeks in autumn, He empties His paintpots over the countryside and splashes colour with happy abandon that takes your breath away.

And our God offers us a colourful life as well. When you have chosen His colours, he will ask you to make those your colours. Not some faded tint from your old life—your old colours will only marr the splendor of His beauty.

Yes, a true conversion will lead to some major decor changes in your life. But we need not be afraid of a complete commitment. God will not ask us to do anything that would harm us or give up anything that is for our good. After all, He is the creator of the good and beautiful.

This is the God we worship. Could anything He ever asks be too much? How long will you wait at the intersection for something better? Doesn’t He have any colours you like?

The light is green now—move on!

ON February 13, 1918, in the closing phases of the First World War, Viscount Allenby, the commander of the British Army in the Middle East, was outlining to his officers a plan of frontal attack on the village of Michmash.

One of his officers, Major Petrie, felt sure that he had heard the name Michmash before, but could not remember where or when.

That night he could not sleep, for turning the word over in his mind. Michmash, Michmash he mused. At last it occurred to him. Michmash was the name of a place mentioned in the Bible.

Quickly finding the passage in 1 Samuel 13 and 14, the major rushed to his superior officer, roused him from sleep, and excitedly pointed out the verses describing a battle in that very place 3,000 years before.

The Biblical account tells how Jonathan and his armour bearer climbed up a steep path by two sharp rocks and subdued the Philistines in their rocky stronghold. The general decided it was worth investigating, and sent out scouts at once to check on the accuracy of the Bible description. When the scouts located the sharp rocks and other landmarks, they reported their findings.

The commander and major studied the Bible account more carefully, and that night changed their plan of attack. The next morning a small detachment of British soldiers followed Jonathan's route, surprised the Turks, and routed them with ease.

Just how often the Bible has provided an exact plan for successful attack and victory on a literal battlefield, I don't know, but the Bible has certainly meant personal power for victorious living. It has certainly meant peace of mind in the time of trial, and strength to meet every crisis, and hope for the future.

And much more than all that, only eternity will reveal how many times the Bible has made possible victory over temptation and sin.

There is power in the Book of God. We read that the gospel "is the power of God unto salvation to everyone that believeth." Romans 1:16

Do You Really Believe?

Jim Hohnberger. At some point, everyone who claims to believe in the Lord must confront himself with the question, "Do I really believe?" Do I really believe God is there for you now, this moment, in this situation, in this predicament? God is there for you! Jim shares three stories that illustrate genuine belief and challenges us anew with the question, "Do you really believe?"

"Books are the quietest and most constant of friends:
they are the most accessible and wisest of counsellors, and the most patient of teachers."

—Charles W. Eliot
